(Missal Page 139 – YEAR A)

Leviticus 19:1-2, 17-18; Psalm 102; 1 Corinthians 3:16-23; Matthew 5:38-48
Eighth Sunday of the Year (Missal Page 142): Isaiah 49:14-15; Psalm 61;
1 Corinthians 4:1-5; Matthew 6:24-34

Dear Friends,

How do children learn? Let's start with ourselves, how we learnt to walk, talk and, even earlier than that, how we learnt to smile. Basically our learning was a responding, a reflecting, a copying of what we saw and what we heard. Smile at someone – even a tiny tot – and they'll smile back at you. If this is true of the most basic physical reality of being human its also true of everything that makes us who we are and who we become – our values, our beliefs, our faith, and above all our capacity to love.

St John says that we love because God first loved us. I often say to parents of small children, "watch out, your children are going to look like you!", and I don't just mean the colour of their eyes or the size of their nose. Children – that's all of us – learn to live well and to love generously according to the role models that nature has given, the example of those who love us first, our parents.

Today's Gospel reading at Mass is all about the challenge and invitation to live in imitation of Christ, to do what Jesus would do, to love as He would love. Never stop learning. My dream and my desire for our parish family – our Church, our school, every family – is that we will do all we can to help each other grow in our faith, to accompany each other in all the ups and downs of our lives, to help each other not just reach for our dreams but God's dream for us. By your own simple acts of kindness, generosity, mercy and love you are more powerful and influential than you will ever know.

With my prayers for each of you.

Fr Chris

MISSIO

Monsignor Canon James Cronin, National Director of Missio has recently returned from Cambodia where the Church is in much need of our prayers. This Lent, he would like parishes to consider supporting a future priest in a mission country like Cambodia. It costs over £700 to train a seminarian for one year with £200 raised locally by the seminarian's family, parish and diocese, however in reality it is almost impossible for them to raise the remaining £500. There will be a special collection the weekend of 1st/2nd March for this special appeal from Missio.
