In this Sunday's Gospel passage taken from Luke 1:1-4,4:14-21, St Luke the Evangelist, first assures Theophilus- the Beloved of God (which we too as children of God can also lay claim to, and rightly so), that the painstaking account he presents to him is an accurate and orderly account of Jesus' life and teaching. We live in a time, when it seems only what can be verified and analysed with scientific lens is true and reliable. The historicity and meaning of the life, death, resurrection and ascension of Jesus Christ into heaven isn't only historical, but also an eternal truth. Science alone cannot attain the fullness of this truth, without God's gift of faith.

Today's Gospel passage is also very pertinent because in it, Jesus sets out, what in modern parlance we refer to as manifesto or mission statement - "The spirit of the Lord has been given to me, for he has anointed me ... to bring the good news to the poor, to proclaim liberty to captives. and to the blind new sight, to set the downtrodden free, to proclaim the Lord's year of favour."

This mission statement had not only been relevant to those to whom it was first given and those who lived during Jesus' time. It is also relevant to us who live in the present time with so much challenges and uncertainties in the world. What's more? This promise of a truly better experience of life is trustworthy because it comes from Jesus and we can confidently rely on him without any shred of doubt. His words are unlike those of some of our earthly leaders or even friends; who sometimes fail and lie to us. We give our temporal leaders power to order our temporal affairs in exchange for what they think will make our lives better. But Jesus wholly and selflessly offers himself to us not only for our temporal wellbeing but also for an eternal reward in heaven.

All we have to do, like our forebears in the faith, is come to Jesus in faith for he alone has the power to liberate us from both our temporal and spiritual captivity. He gives us the example of his life as a means of showing us how to live mutually together and as the beloved children of God. He comes to roll away the stones that continue to press us down from living life fully and happily. No better news have we therefore, than that the Son of God became one like us except in sin, so as to give us true freedom and the gift of eternal life. May this mission of Jesus Christ for all people become a living experience in our individual lives. AMEN

Fr. Joseph
