The Ascension of the Lord
(Missal Page 272 – YEAR A)

Pentecost Sunday (Missal Page 288): Acts 2:1-11; Psalm 103; 1 Corinthians 12:3-7, 12-13; John 20:19-23

Acts 1:1-11; Psalm 46; Ephesians 1:17-23; Matthew 28:16-20

Dear Friends,

“Are you lonesome...?” So goes the great Elvis Presley’s song, as some of you may remember!

The terrible pains of loneliness afflict everyone from time to time. No one escapes. Rich or poor, educated or simple, healthy or sick, believer or atheist, saint or sinner. You. Me. For some people, the experience of loneliness has somehow pushed them to new heights of creativity and self-expression in art, music, literature and study. But it has driven others to gambling, drink, gluttony and self-harm. Loneliness has moved some people to seek and find loving encounters in deep friendship and service, or true sexual fulfilment in marriage and family life. But it has driven others to prostitution, pornography and sexual perversions. For some people, loneliness has been the path that has led them to a deeper relationship with God, and to a life of contemplative, and even mystical prayer. But it has brought others to jump off bridges, or throw themselves under a train, or hang themselves, or to end their lives by a fatal over-dose.

Even people who are happily married, or have an exciting social life, or who live in a community, can still be afflicted by loneliness. And there are some very sensitive people, even those surrounded by loving family and caring friends, who can feel lonely nearly all the time. Many people will be lonely, but they will not admit it. They regard it as a personal failure. They think loneliness is a weakness, something to be hidden. These people may put on a wide smile. Yet they suffer behind closed doors. They cry alone. Our experience, in fact, is rooted in the lonely make-up of the human heart. Your heart and mine. It is a loneliness that can never be taken away completely by any human love. To those whose lives are devastated by loneliness, or those who live in the fear of some future loneliness, through bereavement, or sickness, or old age, the Church today celebrates a word of immense hope.

Today is the Feast of the Ascension. But this feast does not commemorate a departure. No! It celebrates a presence and a promise:

I AM WITH YOU ALWAYS, EVEN TO THE END OF TIME.

Most of us need to hear this promise personally and often. It is a promise that can inject a massive dose of hope and courage into our veins! This promise can help us to live at peace with our loneliness and restlessness. And to accept the limitations of the people we love, not demanding from them what they cannot give us. Celebrate today. Hear the promise. Believe the word. Receive new hope. Have peace. Be grateful. May God bless you all.

Fr Fortunato
